

Lockdown and alternate concepts

Wrong management-how to explain? When Corona virus situation was in preliminary stage- Central Government declared sudden full lockdown, but, now-a-days when it has spread everywhere as chronic disease, dying more and more people; now they have declared different stages of unlocks. This anti-logic proofs that sudden declaration of Lockdown was a major wrong decision. Those, who took that decision, are top leaders of government; their salaries are assured and have no financial crisis or risks. By by that wrong decision- economic system of the country is fully damaged.

Who have been mostly affected? Most economic attacks happened for the private school teachers, college teachers, home tutors, journalists, singers, event organizers, lawyers, writers, artists, players and others. Government decided to close schools-colleges, bus, tram, auto, riksha etc.- but our question is that 'my dear ministers, have you discussed with private owners of institutes, cinema halls, picnic-gardens, Zoos, Tour organizations? All of these organizations, allied companies and service providers are mostly affected. When people want to let run Train then, who are you the government to go against people desires? Without talking with these organizations/associations, by one night decision of Lock down caused unemployment in the poor and in middle classes.

Before, there were many guidelines of precautions to avoid gatherings as (a) scattering shops of vegetable, fish and others to different places, (b) three shift wise opening shops, (c) giving more attention to personal protection. But, now a day these issues have been loosen and people are not following any rules. Very joking matter is that in preliminary stage of COVID-19, all precautions were applied but when pandemic situation is in critical stage, now a days, government has loosen all rules.

Already, economic system of the country is damaged, GDP(Gross Domestic Product) has fallen highest in India compared to any other country. This damaged economy will not be possible to recover in next two/three years also. Government has to take all these responsibilities.

Blaming authority will not solve the problem, it happened due to limitations of knowledge of them. To resist the great falls of GDP, some urgent plans may be considered for crisis management. Govt should take actions immediately:

1. Open all train/bus/trams/auto/metros/flights for easy communications. People themselves should take prevention and care to protect themselves. The Best example is 'invention of Shoe' of Rabindra Nath Tagore, the main theme of that poem is that we can't remove all dust from the road, but, wearing shoes by own self can solve the problem of dusting the foots.
2. Open all entertainment places immediate: entry and exit doors should be multiple rather than single door. Time span of visiting of these places may be 24 hours but with less number of entries at each shift- which may recover financial damages happened in these organizations. If three shifts of works are planned, more and more people will get job and most of the crisis will be solved.
3. All school-college-universities, factories, workshops, garages should be opened as two/three shifts basis, all laboratories/workshops should be activated running all equipment time to time that these machineries are not rusted/dusted or damaged due to nonfunctioning of institutes. For that, local students may be permitted to use laboratories. Sometime, local laboratories should be open to any student of any other institutes also that they can get facilities of all laboratories of local institutes. If so, students who have left city of their institutes but, staying in home town/place, they will get facilities to use/learn from local institutes. It has administrative problems but, alternate solution to be found out.
4. Service providers and professionals like nurse, guard, mechanics, labors, and ground level workers have lost their jobs. Could not the Government understand that these people will lose jobs? If so, it is called ignorance of top leaders of the country. But, if they understood that the situation might be uncontrolled- why they declared lock down suddenly? We conclude it as lack of knowledge of top leaders or if this decision had come from the brain of Advisors of Government then it was a wrong decision. Still some Government employees argue in favor of more lock down, because, staying at home but their salaries are ensured, who has no economic crisis and never they feel or understand the pain of the poor. Central government failed to give a proper guideline to solve the economic crisis; rather, by ignorance they have increased sufferings of people by name of Lockdown.
5. Decision making system is estranged, government authority who can't give any allowance to small private institutes/business firms, but, very strange of democracy is that other's business firms closing decision remains to government paid officers/ministers while they can't give a single rupee to them. Major decisions should remain in hands of associations of these types of private organizations.

Then what are the final solutions? Unlock has come to 4th stage and about to unlock all situations, but, yet many institutes, business organizations have not started and due to that reasons allied companies can't start normal functioning.

Only and only one solution is to increase activities three times more to recover the damages happened. Can we increase our normal activities three times more and how? Only answer is that when danger comes from back side, people run with more and more speed to save lives. Planning of running fast and accurate is the art of management, designing timely and acting properly can cure the damages of economy of the country.
